TAKEAWAYS

The average price is influenced by several high-value sales, including a townhome transaction. Condo-only averages provide a more useful comparison for most condominium owners. Unit size, location, view, condition and renovation quality must also be considered.

UNDERSTANDING PROPERTY VALUES

WHY TWO CONDOMINIUMS CAN SELL AT DRAMATICALLY DIFFERENT PRICES

Recent transactions highlight why community-wide averages tell only part of the story. D706, a 1,020-square-foot two-bedroom/two-bath condominium with an older interior, sold for $390,000 ($382 per square foot). E201, a recently remodeled 1,759-square-foot three-bedroom/two-bath residence, sold for $1.6 million ($910 per square foot).

E201 sold for approximately 138% more per square foot than D706. But this is not a controlled comparison: the units differ in size, bedroom count and possibly views, location, floor plan and other characteristics. The photographs illustrate the contrast in interior presentation; they do not prove that renovations alone explain the price difference.

Property	Sale price	Beds/Baths	Living area	Sale $/SF	Interior
D706	$390,000	2 / 2	1,020 SF	$382	Older / dated
E201	$1,600,000	3 / 2	1,759 SF	$910	Recently remodeled

What this means for owners: A reliable valuation looks beyond a single community average. Buyers evaluate size, condition, layout, views and the quality of updates. Comparing genuinely similar residences produces more meaningful pricing guidance.

COMMUNITY PULSE™ #2

OUR COMMUNITY. OUR PRIORITIES.

Our second Community Pulse survey received 35 responses, up from 27 in the first survey — an increase of approximately 30%. The results reflect the views of voluntary respondents and are not an official Association vote or statistically representative sample of all owners.

KEY RESULTS

Question	Leading finding
Proposed ICC increase to $75,000	17 of 35 (48.6%) support; 12 (34.3%) prefer $50,000; 5 (14.3%) need more information; 1 (2.9%) supports a smaller increase
Existing owner moving to another YARCOBR home	29 of 35 (82.9%) favor no ICC
Existing owner buying an additional investment unit	17 of 35 (48.6%) favor full ICC; 9 (25.7%) favor half ICC
Primary capital-improvement funding	23 of 35 (65.7%) favor purchaser-paid ICC
Formal 5–10-year capital plan	32 of 35 (91.4%) say very or somewhat important
Most-selected improvement priorities	Structural needs 18 (51.4%); entrance/guardhouse 15 (42.9%); beach facilities 14 (40.0%)
Satisfaction with community direction	23 of 35 (65.7%) very or somewhat satisfied

A MESSAGE FROM DANIEL & MATT

Dear Neighbors,

Thank you to everyone who participated in our second Community Pulse survey. We received 35 responses — approximately 30% more than our first survey — and hope participation continues to grow. Our goal is to provide an ongoing way for residents to express their opinions anonymously and to share those perspectives with the community, Board and management. We believe constructive feedback, transparent information and a better understanding of resident priorities can help make YARCOBR an even better place to live. These voluntary surveys complement, rather than replace, official Association decision-making. Thank you for making your voices heard.

Warm regards, Daniel Schultz & Matt Gelling
